Catalyzing a Gender Just Climate Future

What if a donation can multiply impact with outcomes not just today, but in the future?

That's what happens when you fund women-led, community-rooted climate action through GAGGA. Every dollar you invest doesn't just fund a project — it catalyzes ripple effects: restoring ecosystems, securing food and water, and accelerating locally-led adaptation. We welcome new funding partners to join us in catalyzing gender-just, locally-led climate action that addresses the root causes of climate change.

Gender-just climate action recognizes that women, girls, and trans, intersex, and non-binary people are disproportionately impacted by climate change, yet remain the least resourced to respond, despite being proven leaders in advancing sustainable, community-rooted climate solutions.

Why Fund Forward

What if funding climate action meant trusting the people already living it?

Climate solutions already exist. What is often missing is flexible funding, long-term support, and trust in frontline leadership.

This funding enables communities to restore ecosystems, protect water sources, strengthen resilience, and elevate women's leadership in climate spaces.

At its core, Fund Forward strengthens the networks and local infrastructures already delivering impact.

By multiplying what already works, GAGGA helps communities scale proven, locally grounded solutions from the local to the global.

Why this approach works

Climate solutions already exist. What's missing is: flexible funding, long-term support, trust in frontline leadership. Fund Forward doesn't build new systems. It strengthens the ones already delivering impact.

By reinforcing existing infrastructures, GAGGA helps communities scale their impact from the local to the global, not through replication, but through amplification of proven, locally-grounded pathways.

GAGGA was created by Fondo Centroamericano de Mujeres Foundation, Both ENDS, and Mama Cash in response to the urgent need to fund and support gender-just climate action across the Global South, where the impacts of climate change are intensifying.

What is GAGGA's added value?

GAGGA's added value lies not in creating new systems, but in sustaining and strengthening the ones that already work.

GAGGA acts as a strategic amplifier: a convener, catalyzer, and funder that ensures resources flow directly to women-led, community-rooted organizations already driving transformative, gender-just climate action.

Who this is for?

Fund Forward is for funders who want:

1. Climate impact that lasts
2. Solutions led by those most affected
3. Funding that addresses root causes, not symptoms
4. To move beyond project-based giving

Whether you fund climate, gender justice, or development — this is where those priorities meet.

What you can make possible

The infrastructure already exists. Across the Global South, communities are:

1. Restoring ecosystems
2. Building climate resilience
3. Advancing climate just women-led solutions
4. Influencing policy shifts and systemic change
5. Furthering just energy transition

Fund Forward scales this work. Not by starting over, but by resourcing what is already in motion.

What is GAGGA's five-year goal (2026-2031), and how will my funding contribute to achieving it?

Over the past decade, GAGGA has cultivated a powerful ecosystem of women, trans, intersex, and non-binary climate leaders advancing community-rooted climate action across the Global South. By connecting feminist movements, environmental justice groups, and community-based organizations, GAGGA has strengthened locally led solutions that address the climate crisis from the ground up, where impact is most effective and enduring.

GAGGA's five-year goal (2026-2031) is to sustain and deepen this proven infrastructure, ensuring that frontline climate leadership continues to thrive, scale, and influence systems well beyond individual projects. This means protecting what works, removing persistent systemic barriers, and amplifying the voices of those most affected by, and already responding to, climate change.

Fund Forward with us

GAGGA is actively closing the gender-climate finance gap. This is an invitation to fund climate action differently: To move resources closer to the frontlines, support those already leading, multiply impact across communities and systems.

Our goal is to fund frontline partners most affected, and most effective - strengthening the existing ecosystem, one built by women, trans, intersex, and non-binary leaders who are already implementing effective, community-rooted climate solutions.

Your funding not only reduces carbon emissions - it addresses the root causes and core impacts of climate change, while also strengthening ecosystems, accelerating locally-led solutions and building community resilience.

Fund Forward. Scale collective action. Multiply climate impact. GAGGA makes it possible. Partner with us.
